H. J. TREMAINE OF ANGELUS HOTEL, L. A., MAKES AN OFFER FOR HOSTELRY

Meeting of Subscribers to East Side Project Hear Proposition to Build and Operate on the Ambrosini Proposed Site

COST OF NEW HOTEL TO BE ABOUT $400,000

Citizens of Glendale Are Asked to Subscribe to Total of $166,000, of Which $70,000 Has Been Raised by Stockholders

The subscribers to the fund for building a hotel on the Ambrosini site, the corner of East Broadway and Glendale avenue, last night endorsed the proposition of H. J. Tremaine, proprietor of the Angelus hotel in Los Angeles, to build and operate a hotel. The hotel committee of the East Glendale Advancement association was appointed to represent the subscribers in making the final arrangements with Mr. Tremaine for the erection of the hostelry.

The proposition offered Glendale is this: Mr. Tremaine and the people he represents will build in Glendale a hotel to cost approximately $400,000 complete. This sum will include the furnishings of the hostelry. The people of Glendale are asked to subscribe $166,000 toward the erection of the hotel, Mr. Tremaine and his associates will subscribe another $166,000, and will borrow the remainder. The Glendale investment will be secured by second mortgage bonds paying 7 per cent. These bonds are to be retired in 10 years. The retirement of the bonds will start at the end of the fifth year and will retire 3 per cent of them each year.

The Ambrosini site, to be used for the hotel will be considered as a portion of the Glendale investment. This property will be taken in at a valuation of $66,000, leaving $100,000 to be subscribed. There is approximately $20,000 in liens outstanding against the property at present. These liens will have to be cleared up by the Glendale subscribers, making a total of $120,000, approximately, to be raised here. Already, approximately $70,000 has been subscribed to the plan, leaving approximately $50,000 to be secured.

In return for the investment Mr. Tremaine agrees to erect on this property a seven story, class A, fireproof hotel with 140 rooms, each room to have a private bath. The building as tentatively outlined is to follow the Spanish type of architecture. Included in the hotel building will be a ballroom, stage for theatrical productions, motion picture booth and roof garden with a seating capacity of 1000 people. It was tentatively suggested by Mr. Tremaine that the hotel might also include from three to five bungalows, similar to the ones erected at the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles. Everything about the hotel will be the latest idea in hotel building and it is planned to make it one of the best hostelries in the Southland.

Under the plans outlined by Mr. Tremaine, the Glendale subscribers are to appoint a committee to work with the builders during the construction of the building, to see that the money invested is spent for nothing except the building and furnishings.

In making his proposition, Mr. Tremaine said: "Glendale is a city of approximately 30,000 people and has, practically speaking, no hotel. There is nothing better than a good hotel in a community. The hotels put Pasadena on the map. I will put as much money in the proposition as you do, but whatever is done must be done quick. Now is the time to do the work, as I will not open a hotel in the spring. That is the worst season of the year. I want to have the building completed in time to open to the public not later than January 1."

Mr. Tremaine was introduced by Mr. Whitney, representing the firm of W. Ross Campbell of Los Angeles, leasing brokers, who make a specialty of handling deals such as the one offered Glendale. Mr. Whitney, speaking for his company, said: "We are willing to put ourselves behind the proposition."

Mr. Whitney also said that any building he is connected with must be a class A building. He also assured the subscribers that the proposition made by Mr. Tremaine is a square business-like proposition. He said: "If there are any widows or orphans who are investors in this proposition, I assure them that they will receive 100 cents for every dollar invested."

GLENDALE DAILY PRESS TOURNAMEN ON HI GROUNDS

Loving Cup to Be Given in Tennis and Handball Events

Three beautiful silver loving cups will be given by the Glendale Daily Press to the winners in tennis and handball tournaments, to be held on the high school athletic grounds during July and August. One cup will be awarded to the winner of the boys' and men's tennis tournament; another will be given to the girls' and ladies' champion, and the third trophy will go to the winner in the handball tournament.

Entries for any and all of these events should be made at once to N. C. Hayhurst, chief instructor of athletics at the high school, to his assistant, H. F. Butterfield, or to the Glendale Daily Press office, 222 South Brand boulevard. Mr. Hayhurst may be seen at the high school grounds any afternoon after the opening of the vacation athletic season. These tournaments will start some time next week, the definite opening date to be announced later.

The high school athletic grounds will remain open for the benefit of people of Glendale during the months of July and August, according to an announcement just made by the board of directors of the school. The plan is to keep the grounds open from 2 to 7 o'clock every day, beginning next Saturday. N. C. Hayhurst will have complete charge of the grounds during the month of July, and H. L. Butterfield will be in charge during the month of August.

The plan of the instructors is to provide a program of athletic entertainment for each afternoon that will assure there being something interesting every minute. The grounds will be open to all of the men and boys of high school age in Glendale, as well as to boys who will attend high school next year.

The principal athletic events during the summer will, of course, be the tournaments, to the winners of which cups will be given by the Glendale Daily Press. In addition, baseball teams will be organized, and ball games will be played every Saturday afternoon. Indoor baseball teams will also be formed, and games will be played with teams from Pasadena and Los Angeles. In addition to these, there will be other atheltic features that promise to be of general interest.

NEW GARBAGE COLLECTION HOURS

New hours for garbage and waste matter collection have just been instituted by Sanitary Inspector Hollenbeck of this city. Hereafter the schedules for these collections will be as follows:

Garbage collection: West route. Mondays and Thursdays; east route, Tuesdays and Fridays; south route, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Waste matter collection, (tin cans, broken glass and china, metals, and the like): West route. first and third Mondays; east route, first and third Tuesdays; south route, first and third Wednesdays.

The direct charge and the necessity of securing garbage tags has been eliminated by the city council. All the residents have to do is to put their garbage out at the curb and the collection denartment will do the rest. All garbage must be placed in position for collection not later than 6 o'clock on the days of gathering.

CHANDLER COUP REPORTED STOLEN

A Chandler coupe, belonging to George W. Strang, 420 Porter street, was stolen from in front of his place of business, 720 East Broadway, early last night. The Glendale police were at once notified, and Officer Booth was detailed on the case. About two hours later Booth reported finding the machine in the middle of the intersection of Harvard and Glendale avenue. The car was returned to Mr. Strang at 9 o'clock this morning.

Money Will Not Buy the Things in Life Worth While

"The precious things of life can not be bought," declares James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" this evening. In his characteristic way the Press philosopher tells of a practical man who set out to make enough money to satisfy him. Having accomplished his goal, the man seeks health, friends and understanding, but none of these are purchasable —so in the end the money brought the practical man no happiness. Don't fail to read "The Listening Post" this evening.

That one might as well predict a baby wearing the academic cap and gown as to predict that the baby of the future will be ushered into life with a gigantic mind in full operation, is the assertion of Henry James in his comment on the day's news. Such comment is called forth by some of the writings from the prolific pen of H. G. Wells.

Editorials in the paper this evening deal with some of the most vital issues of the day, and are worth-while reading as they will give you a brief resume of what is going on in the big world these days.

The editorial page this evening is filled with other equally interesting subjects which will be of value to every member of the family. There is the esatern point of view, the article on correct English and the daily feature articles by Della Stewart, John Pilgrim and Dr. Frank Crane.

PROGRESSIVE CLUB ASK DEPOT VOTE

Glendale Daily Press to Print Ballot for Location Here

The Progressive business club met at the Broadway Inn at noon yesterday with a good attendance, and an enthusiastic progressive spirit.

The most important item of business was that concerning the vigorous and determined effort on the part of the club to secure a new, much-needed, Southern Pacific depot for Glendale. George H. King and Dr. Henry R. Harrower told of being present on Tuesday evening at a committee meeting where three of the Southern Pacific officials were in attendance, and it seems that those officials were convinced beyond a doubt that Glendale was entitled to a new depot, but they would not proceed until they were satisfied as to just where it should be located. Three sites, it was said, were suggested—Tropico on or near the present location, Colorado avenue, and Broadway.

Citizens of Glendale will soon be given an opportunity by a ballot through The Glendale Daily Press to express themselves as to choice of location, and these votes will be turned over to the proper committee for transmission to the railroad company.

The following resolution was adopted: "That it is the sense of the Progressive business club of Glendale that the work being done by the transportation committee of the chamber of commerce have its hearty support."

The club also went on record as being favorable to the present plan of the city council to make a slight increase in the city taxes for park maintenance. Progress is being made by the civics committee in their efforts to secure a direct approach to Griffith park from Glendale.

In response to telegraphic request from the Progressive business club of Long Beach, received Monday, the local club wired them that "The board of directors of the Glendale Progressive business club heartily endorses the proposed affiliation of the National exchange club with the Progressive business club, retaining our identity, name and aims."

Secretary Howarth reported that the contemplated advertising trip of the Modesto club, mentioned last week, had been indefinitely postponed.

President W. B. Kelly was unanimously elected as a delegate to attend the national convention at Salt Lake city the last of July.

Ed N. Radke presented each of the members with an advertising novelty in the form of a fly swatter.

Chairman Belyea of the membership committee reported Dr. C. E. Kimlin as a new member, and stated that there were now 44 members of the local organization with prospects of rounding out the 50 before the close of the month. B. W. Sherwood was made an additional member of the membership committee.

Guests present were Thomas A. Geisus and son John, of Portland, Ore., and Captain Earl Goodspeed.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "America," and closed with the singing of popular songs.

Members who were present at the spring poets' dinner on Monday night, were more than pleased with the success of the affair, and many stated that it was the most enjoyable time they had shared since coming to Glendale.

DEDICATION ADDRESS OF MAYOR SPENCER ROBINSON

The voice of Glendale broke through the ether last night in the big tones of Mayor Spencer Robinson, with a solemn dedication of the station here to a life of service, an offer of cooperation and a welcome to all who seek happiness and contentment in a home-loving community. The address follows:

Hail, brothers of the ether—riders of the zenith—speakers whose voices traverse the universe—I, Spencer Robinson, mayor, announce to you the voice of Glendale is raised tonight among you, in the harmony of the unknown mystery of radio, and speaks to you of wondrous civic growth, of the blessings of bountiful prosperity, of pride in justice and opportunity here in the plains before the eternal Verdugo hills, in the shadow of the Sierras.

In dedication of the broadcasting station of the Glendale Daily Press and the J. A. Newton Electric company, combined, to the service of a bigger and greater Glendale, with a voice that will reach the sister cities of the coast, I pledge it to the support of law and order, the support of justice and virtue, the preservation and defense of the homes of the southland and the upholding of the flag of this nation and the constitution of this people. Upon these attributes the growth of Glendale has been achieved and upon them it will progress and advance to its destiny in Southern California!

Wherever, within the sound of the radio voice of Glendale, there is a community stumbling in its progression, let it heed the voice of this city and find therein advice and brotherly council in the right road to civic greatness. We are fourteen yeasr old. We have thirty thousand people. We are home-owners. Our business men are fraternal. Our people are affiliated with our strong churches.

Our public schools are crowded. Our young people are strong, healthy, striving in happy rivalry.

Our people are musical—our people are industrious, our people are charitable and broad-thinking in charity.

All of these and many more traits are here—that grow out of the attributes we have developed.

Come to Glendale—if you would doubt—but blessed is he that sees not but believes, and does likewise.

GLENDALE PRESS-NEWTON RADIO PUNCTURES ETHER AND RIDES THE AIR WAVES

Reports Pour Into the Office, Carrying Congratulations to the Station and to the Artists Who Sang in the Program

By N. D. GARVER

Hello, this is Radio KFAC! The first number on the program will be the dedication of this station by Mayor Spencer Robinson, Glendale's singing mayor." That was what was heard by all who were listening on their radio outfits and by those who were listening on other's outfits last night.

Many people were fooled by the reproduction of the Brunswick phonograph, furnished by the Glendale Phonograph company, inasmuch as many compliments were received on the "orchestra."

This certainly speaks well for the machine. Many people have stated that it was impossible to reproduce good music from a phonograph. The compliments were many, also for the new $1100 electric Ampico, furnished by the Glendale music company.

It is a very difficult matter to reproduce piano music, especially in the accompaniment, but from the majority of the reports the impression gained, was that every note was heard clearly and plainly audible.

This piano has an electric attachment and was used last evening for the reproduction of "Say It With Music," and "Caprice Venois," both music rolls.

One call from Los Angeles reported that the Press-Newton station had rendered one of the clearest and best programs heard for some time and stated that it was well worth the time which they had waited for it, caused by the unfavorable delay caused by a bad power tube, last evening.

Every word was reported as distinctly audible in the solo's rendered by Mayor Robinson, Mr. O. W. Andresen and Mrs. Howard Edward Cavanah of Glendale and the clear cut tones of the steel guitar, which was played by Miss Bessie Mock of Glendale, were reported as wonderful.

The Newton Electric company, at 154 South Brand boulevard, opened their doors at 7:50 p. m. so that many of the people not having radio sets, could hear the concert.

Mr. Radke of the Radke Jewelry company, entertained many.

The Press-Newton radio station, Radio KFAC, will be on the air this afternoon at 5 p. m. and will broadcast until 5:30 p. m., giving the baseball scores and latest news items in addition to several selections on the Brunswick and Ampico. The next regular concert will be given Friday night between the hours of 8 and 9 p. m. These hours will not be the regular hours of this station next week and the programs cannot be announced until later.

However, Friday night's program may be heard at the Newton Electric company or Roberts & Echols' drug store, corner of Brand and Broadway. No doubt others will open their places. If so they will be announced in Friday's paper.

The J. A. Newton Electric company and the Glendale Daily Press wish to combine in offering their many thanks to the radio enthusiasts and friends who have shown such an interest in Radio KFAC. Further reports on programs rendered by this station will be greatly appreciated by either mail or phone.

SHOULD STREET WORK WAIT ON SEWER PIPES?

The laying of the pipes for sewers in the streets of Glendale before the permanent street work is installed was the suggestion made by a local business man, in conversation with City Manager Reeves, yesterday.

"It is a shame," said this business man, "for permanent street work to be done when it is known very well that within a comparatively short time these same pavements will have to be torn up for the laying of the sewers. Would it not be better and cheaper to lay these mains now, before the street work has been done?"

While speaking of the proposition this morning, City Manager Reeves said:

"This is a suggestion that might very well be given careful consideration. It is an angle on the sewer question that has not heretofore been presented, and one that might be of value to Glendale if it were carried out. If this plan should be followed out it would be a very simple matter, when the time comes for the installation of the sewer system, to put these already-installed sewers into use."

"From the first glance I do not think it would pay to proceed along the lines suggested," said City Engineer Hill this morning. "While it is generally acknowledged that Glendale must have a sewer system within a few years, there are points against its installation in this way."

It would cost about $75 per 50-foot lot to install the sewer mains and laterals at this time. If these pipes were installed at this time it would result in an unbroken street system for Glendale. If they are not installed now every street in the city will have to be "dug up" for this purpose. This suggestion seems particularly opportune on account of the fact that right at this time the city council is making strenuous efforts to establish a first-class street system in Glendale.

TIRE THIEVES ARE OPERATING

John H. Madden of 330 Douglas building, Los Angeles, reports the theft of a 33x4 Portage tire and rim from his car while it was standing before the residence at Wilson and Jackson streets at 9:15 o'clock last night. Up to the time of going to press the local police had been unable to locate the missing articles.

GLENDALE ROTARY VISITS BURBANK

Put Pep Into Open Forum of Chamber of Commerce There

Glendale Rotarians attended the open forum meeting of the Burbank chamber of commerce at the Burbank grammar school, and injected plenty of "pep" into the meeting with their songs and other entertainment. The meeting was devoted to promoting the boy scout program in this district.

Lieut. Gov. C. C. Young was the principal speaker of the evening, and chose as his subject, "Scouting." He emphasized the necessity of the community, state and nation in getting back of the boys of today who will be the men of tomorrow.

C. J. Carlson, deputy regional scout executive for the twelfth region, representing the national council, Boy Scouts of America, in his address emphasized the need of helping the boys while they are in the plastic stage, rather than after they have attained maturity.

Several selections were played by the boy scout orchestra of troop No. 3, Glendale, and troop No. 2 gave an interesting sketch of scout camp life.

Scout Gordon Bevans, of troop No. 3, made the address of welcome on behalf of the scouts. Mayor C. C. Crawford of Burbank made the address of welcome t the Rotarians and Lieut. Gov. Young. Judge A. A. Crawford was chairman of the evening.

ST. MARK'S CHURCH TO START DRIVE FOR FUNDS FOR PERMANENT RECTOR

Parish Teams to Take the Field for Enlarged Membership and Support of the Church in Yearly Pledges

RICHARDSON D. WHITE TAKES CHARGE

Retirement of Dr. Cornell Brings Need of Permanent Minister, the Uppermost Thought in the Minds of the Congregation

With the slogan, "A resident minister before fall," a city-wide drive for the recruiting of the known 1200 Episcopalians living in Glendale will start in about ten days from St. Mark's church, as the result of the determination of the special parish meeting held last night in the basement of the church.

The city was divided into districts, Richardson D. White was drafted to head the campaign, and those present were enrolled into teams to present the urgent need of the church to the big detached members of that church living in Glendale, as indicated by the visitation campaign held in Glendale, early this spring.

Four hundred cards are in the hands of the vestry. They represent the total number of persons found in the city of Episcopal faith. Many of them, the vast majority, do not attend the local church. The local drive will be for the purpose of enrolling them here, receiving their pledges to the support of the church, with the result that a resident minister can be financed and the system of drawing on supply clergymen will pass out of the life of the church in Glendale.

The teams organized last night, which will be increased by volunteers later, are as follows:

Northwest; Captain, H. E. Potter; members, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cate, Mrs. Ayala, Mrs. Joseph Kitt, Mrs. Mortimer Baker, and Mrs. W. E. Carre.

Northeast: Captain, Richard Faries: members, Mr. Rinquist, Mrs. H. H. Faries, Miss Litch, Mrs. Atwood, Mrs. Archie Parker, Mrs. Ernest Parker, Mrs. Humphries, Mrs. Gibson Kelly and Mr. H. H. Nare.

Southwest: Captain, Alexander Badger; members, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Read, Mrs. D. L. Green, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Bosserman, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cressey, Mr. and Mrs. Kattleman and Mrs. Grace E. Rowsey.

Southeast: Captain, John Trotter; members, Mrs. Helen Campbell, Mrs. John Trotter, Mr. and Mrs. Downing, Carl Siebert, Mrs. Eble.

Verdugo Woodlands: Captain, Phil S. Bernays; members, Mrs. P. S. Bernays, Charles H. Hamilton, and Mrs. Woodhill.

The line of division for the teams was fixed as Brand and Broadway.

Immediately upon the formation of the teams, pledges for the church were distributed and the teams are to go on record for themselves before the drive is started, which will be about a week from next Sunday.

Captain Potter's team was the first to go on record, with a total of $291 pledges for one year. If other teams equal the amount, approximately $1000 will have been raised by the teams themselves before they take up the drive.

The total amount sought in pledges, is at least $7,500 a year toward the support of the church.

Of this amount not less than $2100 will be set aside for a salary of a resident rector.

Between now and Sunday the drive will be in process of organization, so that when the teams go out they will be equipped with cards and names in order that the work may be completed in one day, and report made to Mr. White.

Members of the faith new to the city, who wish to volunteer their subscriptions or pledges, will be received by C. H. Hamilton, senior warden, at the postoffice.

WASHING MACHINE MOTOR STOLEN

An electric motor was stolen from an electric washing machine at the rear of the Glendale Electric company, 132 North Brand boulevard, last Tuesday night, according to a report made to the Glendale police by the manager of that concern. Officers Stein and Royle have been detailed to locate the missing "power plant."

ORCHARD THIEVES PILFER ORANGES

HOSE IS STOLEN

The hose thief is on the job. S. S. Beran, one of the prominent local contractors, reports that a long length of hose was stolen from his job at 315 East Palmer avenue, Tuesday night. Officer Nunn was detailed to find the hose, if possible.

MOTOR BANDITS AGAIN TRAIL B. CARLETON

Police Unable to Trace Reported Hold-up Men

A second attempt by motor bandits to hold up B. Carleton of 1135 East Elk street was made last night, the first effort being made several nights ago. As on the previous occasion, the attempted holdup occurred on Los Feliz road, and, as on the other occasion, Carleton outdistanced the would-be criminals by stepping on the throttle and racing into Glendale.

Carleton drove immediately to the Glendale police department and, in Company with Officers Kerns, Booth and Nunn, scoured the streets of Glendale, but the search proved to be fruitless. Mr. Carleton stated that, as on the previous occasion, there were three men in the pursuing auto, which was a Buick touring car.

THREE PHYSICAL DIRECTORS AT HI THIS FALL

Coach Hayhurst to Have Two Assistants to Handle Work

The Glendale high school is to have three physical directors when it reopens for the fall term. Announcement has been made that the board of trustees have chosen Eugene Wolfe as additional instructor.

Coach N. C. Hayhurst will have charge of the physical training of the boys. He will be assisted by H. L. Butterfield and Mr. Wolfe. His only assistant during the past year was Mr. Butterfield. There are approximately 700 boys in the school and every boy is required to take physical training every day of the school term during the entire four years. The trustees considered the directing of the boys too large a task for two men and the appointment of Mr. Wolfe followed.

Mr. Wolfe is a graduate of the University of Southern California. He will probably be in charge of the boxing and wrestling classes. Mr. Butterfield will coach the baseball and basket ball teams and Coach Hayhurst will have charge of the football team.

FIRST PEACHES REACH PRESS OFFICE

The first peaches of the season to reach the Glendale Daily Press, arrived at noon today, from Harry M. Miller, real estate, 114 East Broadway.

A box of samples that were big and luscious and completely upset the office and the composing room, not to mention wrecking the good intentions of the editorial force, were delivered to the Press, with the request that they be marked "take one," and left on the counter.

The Press office took this as a personal attention and reciprocated. Indications at press hour was that the box would still be there in the afternoon.

Mr. Miller intends to hold a sale this afternoon of his first fruit. Price? Ask him.

KOREA'S PROBLEM OUTLINED BY DR. RUSSELL

Gospel Tabernacle Is Crowded With Spellbound Audience

The lecture last night at the Gospel tabernacle in Eagle Rock, was brim full of interest. It was delivered by Dr. Riley Russell, recently on arrived on furlough from Korea. His subject was "The Physical Crisis the World is Facing, and Humanity's Call to the Christian Physician." Again the famous Jubilee quartet sang their inspiring songs. A special illustrated song is promised for this evening.

Dr. Russell related that during the World war some 80,000 of the cream of manhood was taken from our streets, but this is nothing as compared to the annual death rate throughout the world from diseases which are curable and preventable. Especially in foreign countries where he has traveled, he finds such ignorance of the laws of sanitation and hygiene as would astonish even a poorly educated American.

He pictured conditions in the late death ridden Russia; he spoke of the famine in China and the physical conditions in many other countries, and thtn he showed the alarming condition right in our own land relative to the increasing rate of insanity, nervous disorders, and the admirable way in which physicians are endeavoring to overcome these difficulties; but he stated that the populace must be educated as to how to live, how to eat, and how to take care of themselves.

Humanity's call to the Christian physician today is a stirring one. Never before could a devoted Christian practitioner do so much for people, in relieving their physical ailment and thus winning their confidence and directing them to the Great Physician for salvation.

He stated that his purpose in life has not been merely to bring relief to people's ailments, but in combining medical work with missionary service he has succeeded in saving many a man's soul, who otherwise he never could have gained access to.

The doctor then mentioned the plan of opening in Eagle Rock city, at the request of Evangelist C. S. Prout's evangelistic company, a public health school in the ladies' clubhouse on East Colorado boulevard every Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 2:30 to 4:30. There will be real work of practical value given in demonstrations of proper combinations of food, and other lines of education, and these classes will be organized free of charge to any and all. Perhaps a free-will offering would be taken from those who wished to assist in the expense.

Evangelist Prout announced that the subject for Thursday evening would be "Facing a Warless World and the Armageddon Prophecy;" Friday evening, "Christ's Ideal for a World at Strife—His Second Coming," and Saturday evening "A Message to You from the Sun, Moon, and Stars." Next Sunday evening "Satan's 1000 Years' Vacation."

'UNCLE ED' TELLS OF LIFE IN THE GUEST ROOM

Poet of Eagle Rock Finds Things "What Aint" in Some Hospitality

DEAR MISS POWELL:
I was invited to dine
At a friend's house
Here in Eagle Rock city,
And when I arrived
His wife admitted me,
And my friend
Came wandering in
From back somewhere,
And said "Hello, old man,
How are you anyway?"
And the lady said,
"Show him upstairs."
And when we got up,
My friend said
"Do yawantawash?"
So he led the way
To a nice bathroom—
All pretty and white,
With fancy fixtures,
And "guest towels,"
And my friend said:
"Make yourself at home."
And then he left.
And I washed
My face and hands,
And mussed my hair,
And wiped on a towel
All covered with flowers.
And I looked around
For brush and comb,
But not a sign;
And I opened
The medicine closet
And there was everything
That wasn't somewhere else
In that closet,
But no brush nor comb.
And then I went out,
And sneaked into a room
That was all dark,
And fell over a chair,
And bumped into a bureau,
And found a light,
But no tools for hair,
And I went back
To the bathroom,
And curried my hair
With a nail brush.
But it looked wild,
Like a singed cat.
And in so many places
Where I've been
They turn you loose,
Just like that,
And go away,
And leave you all alone.
And you can't kick
Because they're your friends,
Who invited you
To dine with them.
And how should they know
You'd have hair,
(Though only a little)
That should be combed,
And also brushed
To make the best appearance?
And if you could
Only slip this
Into your paper,
Don't you see
How much good
You could do
For men invited out,
Who still have

WEDNESDAY CLUB HOLDS LUNCHEON

Members of the Wednesday club spent an enjoyable afternoon together on Wednesday when they took luncheon at the Glen Inn, later attending the matinee performance at the T. D. and L. theatre.

Those members presnt were Mrs. H. Lee Clotworthy, Miss Clara Ringert, Mrs. William Nash, Mrs. Charles Sanders, Mrs. William Gibson, Mrs. Alfred Muhleman, Mrs. Charles Freshman, Mrs. Grace Roach and Mrs. J. F. Hearnshaw.

BOARD OPPOSES PARKING LAW

The parking ordinance, as adopted Monday night by the city council, does not meet with the approval of the Glendale realty board. The members present at the luncheon meeting yesterday expressed thir opinions as opposed to the present ordinance, or amendment, on the ground that under the new plan the business district would have several zones that would tend to confuse the automobile owner and work a hardship on the merchants.

On motion of Harry M. Miller, the board members voted to go on record as favoring a three-hour parking ordinance, effective between Central avenue and Everett street, on Broadway, and on Brand boulevard, from Lomita avenue to California street. Instructions were also given the secretary to inform the members of the council as to the action taken and request that body to set a date for a hearing on the ordinance.

In speaking of Glendale's parking ordinance and the amount of alleged injurious advertising that has been given the city because of the ordinance and the attendant fight, Roy D. King said: "Glendale is getting to be the laughing stock of Los Angeles." He said that realtors of Los Angeles are jealous of the marvelous growth of this city and are anxious to stop this growth.

He said: "The stage is all set in Los Angeles to kill Glendale and this parking ordinance is one of the things that might be used to do the work. The parking ordinance is killing the downtown business district of Los Angeles and is responsible for the building up of new business centers, outside, such as the Western avenue district."

Harry M. Miller spoke in opposition to the proposed bill. He said that if it were carried it will force the real estate men to have a lawyer draw up all deeds and leases, as well as handle all escrows. A deed or lease would not be considered legal, under this measure, and could not be recorded unless drawn by an attorney.

The board voted as against this measure and pledged their support in the fight to defeat it.

MISS HOLMES IS NOW MRS. ROWLEY

Miss Alice E. Holmes and Eustace A. Rowley were married at noon today at the home of the groom's parents, 344 West Vine street. The ceremony, which was witnessed only by immediate relatives of both families, was performed by Rev. C. M. Calderwood of the First Congregational church.

The bride was beautiful in a gown on apricot crepeknit silk, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and maidenhair fern. Her bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Rowley, wore a black silk gown and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas. Frank McGillis was best man.

The bridal party entered the beautifully decorated living room to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played softly on the piano by Miss Irma Bradshaw.

Following the ceremony a delicious luncheon was served, the table being centered with a large white wedding cake, which was cut by the bride.

Mrs. Rowley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Holmes of 616 Alexander street. She has lived in Glendale about one and a half years, and has made a host of friends in the short time she has been here. They are formerly from New York.

Mr. Rowley is the eldest son of L. T. Rowley of 334 West Vine street. He is a graduate of Los Angeles high school, and during the world war served for two years in the navy. He received a citation for heroic work, when he saved the lives of several sailors who were drowning when the boat in which they were riding upset. This occurred at Key West. Mr. Rowley is at present employed by the Baker-Viohl Sign company.

After a week's wedding trip the young couple will be at home to their many friends at 451 West Windsor road.

WAR MOTHERS HAVE SPLENDID MEETING

The Lester Meyer chapter of War mothers held a splendid meeting Wednesday afternoon at the American legion hall, with 17 ladies present.

One of the most interesting features of the afternoon was the reading, by Mrs. Samuel Dick, of the report of the State War mothers' convention, held recently in Los Angeles.

Mrs. B. Sherwood, president, was ill and unable to be present, yesterday. The vice-president, Mrs. Priscilla Houdyshel, has resigned, and Mrs. Estella Stevenson was elected to fill her place, and presided. A new treasurer was also elected, Mrs. James Webb, to fill the place of Mrs. J. E. Eckles, who recently resigned.

Resolutions were passed to thank the chamber of commerce, the Glendale realty board and all others who took part in the program of entertaining the delegates, who came here on the evening of June 16; also Mr. Brown of the Green Hill beverage company, for the use of his beverages, which they sold on Saturday and Monday and from which they took in $40. They wish also to thank Roberts & Echols for the use of the old Chaffee building, which they expect to occupy soon.

It was voted that the meeting be adjourned until the second Wednesday in September, when they expect to resume their work with a larger membership, and more enthusiasm than ever.

W. T. McLean and wife, of Wichita, Kan., who arrived Tuesday from Miami, Ariz., after a short visit with a daughter there.

Rev. McLean, who has grown grey in the service of his Master, though still in the vigor of elderly manhood, is the man whose wise counsel and fatherly interest led Rev. Cole to take up the ministry as his life's work. He not only associated himself with his young convert in evangelistic work, Rev. Cole leading the singing in meetings held, but was largely instrumental in securing for him his first position as pastor, at Abilene, Kan. Throughout all his ministerial life, this elderly "Paul" guided his beloved young "Timothy" by wise counsel and earnest prayer. Rev. Cole is particularly pleased that this good friend can be with him during the dedication services.

Truths in Epigram

Honest men esteem and value nothing so much in this world as a real friend. Such a one is as it were another self, to whom we impart our most secret thoughts, who partakes of our joy, and comforts us in our afflictions; add to this, that his company is an everlasting pleasure to us.—Pilpay (300 (?) B. C.).

TRADE WITH RUSSIA

From Secretary Hughes and from Secretary Hoover both, comes the assurance that there are no legal obstacles to trade with Russia. Any American who desires to send his goods to that country may do so. There is nothing to prevent, which is to say, nobody will seek to prevent him, nor have desire to prevent him. He may go as far as he likes with his schemes of barter. This double assurance from two members of the cabinet will have a tendency to upset prevailing opinion. In some manner a belief has been formulated that with Russia eager to buy, there is inhibition as to selling. This has been termed a cruelty, and has been shouted about very lustily. It is a dear theme for the parlor bolshevist.

Of course in the absence of all official barriers, there remains something of a strictly business nature to be considered. Russia has left off the activities essential to production. It has ceased to raise crops. For this reason it is possible that there may be over there a paucity of material to exchange for whatever the Yankee trader may take to the Russian port. That Russia has no money is well known. Its paper currency has the single quality of bulk. Some Russian products, such as timber and mineral, are in abundance, but even these may not be removed without labor, a custom now gone out of fashion. There is lack of transportation facilities, the system having been permitted to decay.

Thus it is seen that the eagerness of American merchants to rush to Russia is largely a matter of imagination on the part of persons who are not American merchants.

LEAVE IT TO THE COURTS

Recently there appeared in this column an editorial with the caption: "K. K. K. to the Bar." Evidently in some quarters the same failed to please. Not that this is deemed unfortunate. The editorial in question was not severe, as it easily might have been made without deviation from the truth, and without undue prejudice. Now in reply to it comes clear from West Virginia, a marked paper containing an article telling of the high tone of Ku Klux morality, and its strong Americanism. The words were quoted from an address of a national organizer of the besheeted gentry. That they warmly endorse the organization is natural enough, but is far from convincing.

In this locality the matter is about to experience practical test at the bar of justice. Meanwhile a number of its members are at liberty on bail, and one pines for liberty because the bail is not forthcoming. Soon the lot will be arraigned, and then they may put in all the defense they can muster. If they are able to demonstrate that to go forth as a mob, and break the law in the name of upholding the law, is constitution; in fact, of American in spirit, they are welcome to go as far as they like. If they can demonstrate that in drawing racial and religious lines, in making night attacks, in arresting persons who have achieved their dislike, or in beating them, or using tar and feathers, their motives are high, and their methods laudable, nobody will be inclined to embarrass them in the production of evidence.

Meanwhile the opinions of a paid organizer, whose cumulative rakeoff is believed to be considerable, will not be taken as final nor even as bearing on the issue. He is as deep in the mud as his indicted brethren are in the mire.

THE CASE OF GOVERNOR SMALL

The jury in the case of Governor Small, charged with plotting to defraud the state of Illinois, acquitted him at once. No defense had been put in in his behalf. Without argument his counsel rested the case on the testimony of the prosecution. Apparently the jury found nothing to discuss, for as soon as they could frame a verdict, it was in the hands of the court. This outcome tends to support the theory that the whole case was political. Such was the charge freely made in the beginning. Tending to create the belief that there was something more in the affair was the apparent reluctance of the governor to go to trial. As it was he let weeks of time and was put to much cost and inconvenience. It happened that domestic tragedy crowned the proceeding, as his devoted wife passed away, doubtless owing to the long strain, and the sudden relaxation of tension.

Illinois probably is like other states in respect of inadequate laws governing the handling of public funds. In some states these laws are such that officials, wholly conscientious in administration, have been accused of laxness, owing to conduct that they were trying to make conform to the statutes. In instances it has been impossible to determine the proper method of investing state funds, or the proper disposition of the interest.

It would not be fair to say that the governor has not been fully vindicated. The prosecution was determined to convict him. It made the strongest showing possible on the evidence it could adduce. The trial seems to have been conducted with uniform propriety, and not as a partisan episode. The legal outcome was a triumph for the executive. That a moment that should have been joyful, was turned to mourning, will tend to lessen the bitterness of his enemies even in the time of their defeat.

THE CONSTRUCTIVE MIND

The republican party proclaims itself in favor of building up, not of tearing down. Therefore it needs the assistance of constructive statesmen. Among the ambitions of the party is to bring about and to preserve conditions from which must flow world peace. A long step in the desired direction was taken when the four-power treaty was formulated, defended by the ablest men of the administration, who as they did this, were representing the wishes of the president, and of the great masses of people. The wisdom of the treaty, the necessity for it, were recognized alike by republicans and democrats. Some of the latter opposed it for partisan reasons. They would have been glad to have the administration fail at a point so vital. But some who professed to be republicans also opposed it. From within the party organization they sought to do a mischief, that an outsider, however wishful, could not have done.

This is one of the circumstances that gave instant strength to the candidacy of Charles C. Moore for the senate. He is exactly the type of man needed. His first impulse would be to uphold the hands of the President. It is the duty of California republicans to support the President by sending to Washington as senator one who will be in sympathy with the administration. Such a course would be good morally and politically. The republican party in this state is devoted to the principles of the party at large, and to the head of the party. Therefore it is in honor bound to support these principles and the executive whose course is an expression of them.

It is this circumstance that makes the candidacy of Mr. Moore so logical and opportune. He has the constructive mind. His activities have been expended in accomplishing tasks; not in rendering accomplishment difficult or impossible. It is not his wont to profess adherence to a party and then hamper and impede the effort of the party to perform its duty. His allegience would be to the people electing him, and he would not be found taking orders from interests hostile to the common good.

OVERPRODUCTION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Among the bugaboos that men have made with which to frighten themselves none is emptier than overproduction. Overproduction means civilization.

The only people that produce just enough are savages.

The only way to climb from savagery to civilization is by producing more than is needed and creating the thing called capital.

Nobody in civilization lives without work. Even the idlers who do not work for themselves live on money, and money represents the work of somebody else, so directly or indirectly there is no life without work.

There can be unbalanced overproduction—that is to say, producing more in one industry than is needed and not enough in another. But, taken as a whole, the human race cannot produce more than it uses.

There are millions of square miles of tillable land unoccupied. There are millions of human creatures living on a low plane of sustenance. If you could get the people on to the land and if you could raise the savage and ignorant people to a higher grade of wants every human being in the world could work at full time and not produce any too much. Or, to speak more concretely, if the rest of the world were living on the plane of the United States, the world would drink nine times as much coffee as it does now, take five times as much sugar, eat eight times as much wheat and corn and use twice as much tobacco, to say nothing of cotton, automobiles, building materials, and so on.

Alan H. Temple in Commerce and Finance points out these facts and adds:

"The imagination can scarcely picture what a hive of agriculture and industry that world would be—and this is predicated, mind you, on the same population that it contains at present. China, with its inexhaustible coal supplies, would probably be one of the world's great manufacturing countries. The wilds of Brazil and the wasted plateaus of Central Africa would vie with the southern states in cotton production. The semi-arid districts of central Asia and Australia might supply the world's wool, and the great plains of Canada and the western United States would be brought up to a per acre cereal production which is at present attained only by the intensive cultivation of small farms. The rubber plantations would be extended from the East Indies into Africa and South America, and the huge iron resources of Brazil would be as important in commerce as the ore of England, Spain and Sweden. A net of railroads would enmesh the world, and the fleets that plied the ocean to carry the world's commerce would have a magnitude that we can grasp at present only in our dreams."

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

"GENTLE JULIA"

(Find the error in this article).

Booth Tarkington in his recent novel, "Gentle Julia," shows an intimate knowledge of the vernacular of childhood.

Fond parents too often condone the errors in grammar made by their own children, refrain from correcting them when the form of expression is plastic and easily moulded into accurate and pleasing English, and then wonder, later, why they are unable to get Florence and Herbert to speak properly.

There is in Florence and Herbert no taint of vulgar English; just the unbridled chatter of boyhood and girlhood, with its naturally faulty structure due to undeveloped little minds.

The simple language, however, remotely suggests hopeless errors one can hear on the streets of any large city and in country districts. The toleration of these expressions, such as "ain't," "me and Jim," "he hadn't ought," "you don't know nothin'," "he must have went," etc., is unpardonable among parents that have had educational advantages, and to be discouraged among those parents that have not had sufficient training in the requirements of good speech.

Unfortunately many of the errors made by Florence and Herbert are more or less generally carried on into maturity by the large majority of youth. Well-educated men and women in all walks of life, including the literary profession, frequently say, as does Florence on page 11, "I didn't have anything to do with you being my cousin, did I?" There is a considerable lack of knowledge of the rule that in such a construction the pronoun you should be in the possessive case; as, I didn't have anything to do with your being my cousin.

Yesterday's Error

"There are few words you will hear more oftener mispronounced than the following."

The right expression is either more often, or oftener, never more oftener.

THE LISTENING POST

There was one time a practical man.
Who said the one thing needful in life was money.
That was all he wanted.
If he had money he could buy anything he desired.
So he set out to get it.
And he got it.

* * *

While he was busy getting the money he wanted he was interested.
Nothing else appealed to him but money getting.
For he wanted his fortune.
After he got that he would look about for the things to buy with it.
For he still cherished the notion he could buy anything he needed with it.

* * *

One day he reckoned up his fortune.
And decided he had enough.
There was no more need for money grubbing.
He must set out to have some enjoyment in life.
And he looked about to see what he could buy with his money.
For the whole world was his, so he thought.

* * *

And while he was thinking over it all he had a rather sharp pain somewhere.
It fretted him.
He was not used to pain.
And he went to his physician.
Who looked him over.

* * *

"Too much money-grubbing," said the physician.
"What is the exact trouble?" said the Money-Grubber.
"A lot of things," said the physician.
So he put him on a diet.
Sent him away.
And cautioned him not to do a lot of things.

* * *

So the Money-Grubber went seeking health.
He had a lot of money.
But he found no place where they offered health for sale.
And so his money availed him little.
It would not buy health.

* * *

And his life was rather empty.
He needed a friend to confide in.
To talk with him and understand him and help while away long and lonesome hours.
But he had been so busy making money he had had time to make no friends.
And he saw no place where they offered friends for sale.
So again his money did not serve him.

* * *

So he grew fretful.
And nobody understood him.
He had a lot of money.
But he saw no place where they offered understanding for sale.
And again his money did not serve him.
And he began to realize that the precious things of life cannot be bought.

* * *

Health forsook him.
He had no friends he could trust.
People misunderstood.
He found little joy in purchasable things.
And he wished he might give away all his money and start over.
But he found no place where they offered beginnings again for sale.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Against Indifference—By John Dryden (1631-1700)

More love or more disdain I crave;
Sweet, be not still indifferent:
O, send me quickly to my grave,
Or else afford me more content!
Or love or hate me more or less,
For love abhors all lukewarmness.

Give me a tempest if 'twill drive
Me to the place where I would be;
Or if you'll have me still alive,
Confess you will be kind to me.
Give hopes of bliss or dig my grave:
More love or more disdain I crave.

Stars Differ Greatly in Size But Little in Mass

By ISABEL M. LEWIS of the U. S. Naval Academy

That the stars differ very little from one another in mass or the quantity of matter that enters into their composition though they may differ enormously from one another in size is one of the most remarkable discoveries of modern astronomy.

It has been found that the most massive of all stars, the bluish-white helium stars, contain at the most no more than about eighteen times the quantity of matter that enters into the composition of our own sun, though some are larger in size than the sun's planetary system. This is approximately the upper limit of the masses of the stars. On the other hand there are, so far as is known, no luminous stars that contain less than about one-tenth of the mass of the sun. In fact it can be shown that there are good reasons why stars of very small mass could not be self-luminous.

Prof. A. S. Eddington, the noted English astronomer and mathematician, has shown in a brilliant mathematical investigation of the effects of radiation-pressure on the evolution of the stars that there are theoretical reasons why the masses of the stars cannot exceed a certain value, and his conclusions are confirmed by the results of observations.

As the giant red stars, representing the first stage in stellar development, contract and become hotter the pressure of light or radiation within their interiors increases with the temperature and acts in opposition to gravity tending to push particles outward from the center of the star toward the surface. As the star passes in its evolution through the stages of yellow, white and bluish-white giant star in turn to the peak of its development as a star of the latter type this radiation pressure becomes more effective as the temperature increases. Under the action of the two opposing forces, gravitation which tends to draw particles toward the center and light or radiation-pressure which tends to force them outward toward the surface, an equilibrium is maintained so long as the mass of the star does not exceed a certain amount. If the mass does exceed this amount the star becomes unstable and either disintegrates or the excess mass is expelled by the action of radiation-pressure. Possibly for this reason, the most massive and hottest of all the stars are frequently enveloped in luminous nebular gases which conceivably are puffed forth from the stars under the action of radiation-pressure. The upper limit of the masses of the stars is thus controlled by the safety-valve of radiation-pressure. If the mass of a star should greatly exceed a certain amount it would at a certain stage of its evolution practically go to pieces.

The enormous giant stars such as Antares and Betelgueze for this reason exceed our own sun millions of times in volume, but have masses so small that their densities are less than one-thousandth of the density of air. As a result their surface gravities are only a few hundreths that of the earth while the surface gravity of the sun is twenty-seven times that of the earth.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

TWENTY YEARS OF CUBA LIBRE

[Brooklyn Standard Union]

Presentation of a flag to the city the other day served to call attention to the fact that the Republic of Cuba is twenty years old. It was an anniversary worth remembering, and appropriately signalized with a gift to New York.

New York today is linked to Havana by a close success of steamboats, carrying freight and passengers both ways at large mutual profit. These peaceful argosies may be contrasted with the ships that sneaked out of this port some little more than twenty years ago, with material comforts to aid the cause of a free Cuba, and with the war fleets that finally sailed from here to accomplish in the name of one big republic the task of making another little one.

In the twenty years of her national existence Cuba has given us many anxieties, but today she presents a spectacle of transquil prosperity that has made worth while all the care bestowed upon her. It would seem, indeed, that the ills of national childhood have been happily and successfully passed.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

H. G. Wells has accomplished many things. He has a wonderfully prolific mind that easily gives him station in a small group of the leading thinkers of this generation. But he essays the impossible, and fails.

HENRY JAMES

When he tries to name the world's greatest six men, he issues a mere opinion. There is no such coterie to be determined by any method. The choice must be arbitrary, and depend largely upon the one choosing. Qualities that to a certain perception would express greatness, to another perception might make slight appeal.

Of course many rush forward to correct the Wells list. Everybody would correct any list not compiled by himself, and upon second thought would be likely to reject that. Comment in one instant is made interesting, however, by the incidental assertion that one hundred thousand years hence children will be born knowing more than Archimedes and Aristotle knew at the end of their long lives.

Precocious kids. Well, there is safety in guessing at the distant future, as there is no definite rule for pointing out the probable error.

It is fair to say that no indication has appeared that the mewling infant is changing much. Its initial intellectual force remains about the same so far as statistics reveal. It requires milk at the usual intervals. The attention of a careful nurse is just as necessary as ever to preservation of its wholesomeness. In fact, the paucity of its wisdom is quite marked.

To predict that the baby of the future will be ushered into life with a gigantic mind in full operation, seems a process without logical basis.

One might as well predict that it would be born wearing academic cap and gown, and waving a degree of Ph. D.

A broker on the New York stock exchange is said to have lost $2,000,000 because his enemies took advantage of his absence at a funeral to run his stocks up or down, which ever he did not desire them to go.

Of course a listed stock is sold according to actual value and nobody would think of manipulating it. No. And what is the moral difference between the tricky brokers in this instance, and an equal number of pickpockets, burglars and porchclimbers?

Japanese are said to object to their countryman Hayakawa, in playing the role of villain on the screen. They think it reflects on their national character. They are too sensitive.

In some of his roles Hayakawa is a particularly high-toned hero, and when he is a villian, for portrayal of despicable villainy, he is not in it with some Americans, who really are model family men, good providers, and too tender-hearted to utter a cross word when dinner is late.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The wife and I have had another row. Somehow, it seems to me that as we grow older we are having our rows a little more regularly. We'll have to get together on this fact and put an end to it. The explanation, of course, is that our respective characters are growing set with increasing years. They have jelled perfectly, so to speak. And neither is as willing to give way to the other as either used to be. And we're just a wee bit too frank in expressing our thoughts.

"Let's go to the block party," says Mrs. Pilgrim. And I pipes up and replies:

"Not me. I'll not play the loyal peasant for any one. I'll not toddle around your condemned and certificated block party in hope that I may get a nod of recognition from the Lady of the Manor, or that I may see the Young Squire in his new red roadster."

"You," says Mrs. Pilgrim, in a moment of wifely candor, "are an old fool."

Anyhow, here is the story. Three blocks in our town were to be roped off from traffic for two days and two nights. And the social leaders and leaderesses of our town were to give a kermess—whatever in the pig's name a kermess is—on those three blocks. And the proceeds were to be devoted to charity. And it was a fine, kindly, lovable idea except for one thing.

It was the most damnably snobbish undertaking I have ever heard of. The one bait on the hook with which it was hoped to catch the dollars of the lower classes—me and my wife and my neighbor and his wife—was that the booths were to be operated by the social leaders and leaderesses. Mrs. Colonel Starbottle and the two Miss Starbottle, Havana and Malicia, were to run the fortune-telling device. And Madame Countess would sell tags. And Clara Vere de Vere, whose mother, you know My Dear, is a daughter of Marmaduke Peaches, had consented to sell her own photograph to the peasantry. And no change—pos-i-tive-ly not a jitney—would be given.

Well, I wouldn't go. I am still, thank God, an American, and I regard myself quite as highly as I do any other American. And if I caught myself going to such a mean-spirited, contemptible, dust-eating contest by confessed inferiors I think my next visit would be to the old apple tree accompanied by a short take of rope.

Mrs. Pilgrim says that I am getting to be a grouchy old fool. Case submitted.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

There's just one way to keep one's self from being a busybody. It's to keep one's body busy. Odd, isn't it? But being very much occupied with our own concerns we have very little inclination or time to interfere with those of others.

The reason isn't all physical. It's largely mental of course. Find a person that is always anxious to learn the business of other people and you find a person that has no mental life of her own. Thoughts can be a mere medley of prying, curious searchings after the unimportant and foolish vaporings about everything in general, with no orderly sequences, no settled plans for living—just a hit-or-miss, helter-skelter way of thinking. We all know of those who impress us thus. Yet such are always over-wise concerning the affairs of others.

Oliver Wendell Holmes once said that there were just two kinds of people—those who went ahead and did things and those who sat back and insisted in knowing why it wasn't done in some other way. So when we find ourselves inclined to criticize or pry into the motives of others—and most of us do feel such urge at times—it might be a good thing if we turned our thoughts inward, the while we exercise our hands at the work that lies nearest. What have we accomplished in our own lives that gives us the right to sit in the seats of the scornful? Are our own ideas bound to be the only right ones?

If we're honest in this self-searching we shall generally have to bow our heads in confusion and relegate our fault-finding to the extreme background of thought.

And if we can't be honest with ourselves there is scant hope for us.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

REV. CLIFFORD A. COLE
Pastor, Christian Church, now dedicating new home

The dedication of the Glendale Christian church will take place next Sunday. Evangelist George Snively, of Illinois, has been engaged to officiate, and he will be ably assisted by Rev. Clifford A. Cole, pastor of the church. Starting at 9:30 o'clock in the morning with the chemically illustrated lecture on "Sin and It's Cure," by Evangelist Snively, which will take the place of the Bible study, the various services will continue throughout the day, ending with the evening service at 7:30 o'clock.

The lecture to be given at 9:30 o'clock will be concluded with the first invitation to the men, women and young people to take membership with the congregation in its new home.

At 10:30 o'clock at one of the local schools, there will be an overflow meeting of the young people. The program will consist of songs, music, readings, stories, and will be not only instructive, but most enjoyable. All children of school age are expected at this service.

Also at 10:30 o'clock in the splendid new auditorium, Evangelist Snively, during the dedicatory sermon, will speak of the significance of Christianity to the great American institution of school, state and home, as well as the church. All are invited to hear this speaker on this great theme. J. G. Warren of Los Angeles, one of the outstanding laymen of the church, and president of the Southern California Christian missionary society, will also speak at this service.

All of the attendants at the two 10:30 o'clock meetings will be guests of the church at the noon luncheon, to be served in the new banquet rooms. There will be an hour's delightful fellowship dinner, of which it is hoped a large number will avail themselves.

At 2:30 o'clock, following the representation of the various congregations, regardless of religious affiliations, will pay tribute to the memory of former brethren, who have loved and labored to make this a better world, and have now gone on to their heavenly reward. Nor will the children be overlooked in their eulogies.

"The Old Days and the Old Ways," one of the most picturesque features of the day, will be an address by Charles C. Chapman of Fullerton, on the old days, the old ways, the old friends. In his own inimitable way the gifted speaker will not only portray the old mission glamour and more modern pioneer days, but will picture and will interpret the romance of present day development and the significance of all we see about us.

The evening service will be largely evangelistic. The sermon subject will be "Immorality." What answers do modern science, the new philosophy and present-day interpretations of the Scriptures give to that age-old question? If man dies, shall he live again?

The church will be tastily decorated, an excellent musical program will be provided, and every moment will be replete with interest.

Without soliciting the public for building funds, this young congregation has given to the city one of the best and most attractive buildings, and is making a most substantial contribution to the city's development, its educational and spiritual welfare.

Naturally, Minister Cole, the officiary, and entire membership of the church will appreciate an expression of general interest in this enterprise by throngs of people filling the seats and courts at all services throughout the day.

EAST SIDE HOTEL PROSPECTS GROW BRIGHT

Subscribers Hear Recommendations of Integrity of H. J. Tremaine

Recommendations of the integrity of H. J. Tremaine who, last night, proposed to take over the promotion of the Ambrosini hotel project, were given at the meeting of the subscribers to the fund.

Judge Schellenberger, of Glendale, who is interested in the International chemical product company, an organization that is installing a factory in this city for the manufacture of printer's ink, was introduced and said that he has been personally acquainted with Mr. Tremaine since the latter was nine years old, and that ever since he was 21 years old Mr. Tremaine has been interested in the hotel business as an operator, and never has he been connected with a hotel project that was other than a success. He pointed to the Angelus hotel in Los Angeles, operated at present by Mr. Tremaine. He said that since Mr. Tremaine assumed th emanagement of the hostelry, September 1, last year the business had more than doubled.

Judge Schellenberger said: "The town needs a hotel and needs it bad. The way to get it is to build it. Nothing gives a town a better name than a good hotel."

Dr. Henry Harrower said: "There are two things that Glendale needs—a hotel where visitors to our city can stop, and a depot where the trains can stop. I know that Mr. Tremaine is right the hotels made Pasadena. A city like Glendale is a disgrace in the eyes of people who ask 'where is your depot?' The depot and the hotel are closely related." He said that he had already pledged $10 to the proposition for stock in the new hotel. If every other subscriber will do so, Dr. Harrower said that he would double this subscription on the new proposal.

Dr. Harrower said that there has been a factional situation created in Glendale that is what he terms a "geographic schism." This divergence of interests was forced on the city, according to Dr. Harrower. He said that the new hotel would be worth as much to the business men and property holders of Brand boulevard, and the west side, as to the people of the east side, and should be made the opportunity to wipe out this existing "geographic schism." He said:

"The people of Brand boulevard and the west side can raise another $70,000 to go with the money already raised, and should do it. If they don't raise this amount within a certain time we, on the east side will do it ourselves."

Dr. M. B. Ketchum said that he had subscribed to the stock proposition for the hotel fund without being very clear as to the exact proposition offered. He is now ready to more than double his subscription in this new proposition.

C. W. Ingledue, chairman of the meeting, said that if the new hotel did nothing more than bring together the two factions in Glendale it will be well worthwhile.

James M. Rhoades, secretary of the chamber of commerce, was called upon to speak, and said: "Gentlemen, there is no east, south, north and west in my work, nor is there with the chamber of commerce. We are working for Glendale and the benefit of the entire city." He said that Mr. Tremaine had visited Glendale more than six months ago in regards to a proposition to erect a hotel on Brand boulevard. When the basement was dug for the Ambrosini hotel these negotiations were stopped, and that there would be no obstacle in the way of the erection of the east side hostelry.

According to Mr. Rhoades the hotel, when erected, will increase the value of property within a radius of one block from the site 100 percent. Other property in the vicinity will be increased in proportion. He said that the people will be directly benefitted by the proposition should be the ones to invest the heaviest in it. He extended an invitation to a committee representing the subscribers to the new hotel to meet with the chamber of commerce directors on Friday night to discuss the proposition. This invitation was accepted and Dr. C. F. Stuart, Charles F. Fisher and Dr. Ketchum are pointed to this committee. In closing his talk Mr. Rhoades said: "The chamber of commerce is back of your proposition."

In the party with Mr. Tremaine was P. William Neville, a representative of eastern capitalists, Mr. Wilkie, Mr. Barton, former chief engineer for the George A. Fuller construction company, of New York and Chicago, and Mr. Lockridge, Long Beach architect. These men will be associated with Mr. Tremaine in the building of the hotel.

Members of the East Glendale advancement association hotel committee present were M. L. Tight, chairman; F. W. McIntyre, A. Ambrosini, F. M. Brown, F. L. Smith, Perch and S. L. Kinch.

The hotel committee was appointed to represent the subscribers in final arrangements with Mr. Tremaine and his associates. This committee went into executive session with the hotel men after the meeting adjourned.

BEAUTIFUL HOMES ON KENWOOD ARE LISTED WITH KING & M'GREW

Kenwood is one of the best improved streets in Glendale. King & McGrew of 616 East Broadway have some of the best on their list. Among those offered are the ones shown here.

The colonial has seven large rooms. The living-room has a fine fireplace in one end. The dining-room connects with the living-room through a large oval arch. It has a modern buffet. Off the dining-room is a spacious sun parlor and a breakfast-room.

The kitchen connects with both breakfast-room and dining-room, and has all the built-in features so much liked by the housewife. The screen porch has two tubs. The two bedrooms both have cross ventilation and are connected with a hall.

The bath, opening off this hall, has a California inclosed tub and all the latest fixutres.

The house is very artistically papered with electric fixtures to match. All floors are of hardwood.

The bungalow with the palm trees has eight rooms and has just been repainted.

It has a large porch across front and side. Entering the house, you come into a large living-room to the right. Connecting with folding doors is a den with desk, bookcases and fireplace. The dining-room has built-in buffet, French doors opening on the side porch; the breakfast-room also opens on this porch.

It has a good sized kitchen with the built-in features that should go with a house of this kind.

The two downstairs bedrooms and bath all open into an inside hall. All the rooms are large. The sairway leads one to a large room upstairs with windows on either end, a wonderful cool place for hot days. There are plenty of large and roomy closets.

Both properties have lawns, trees, garages, etc., and are east fronts.

PERERA TO BUILD HOMES IN CITY

Permits for Six 8-Room Duplex Dwellings Are Issued

Permits for six eight-room duplex dwellings, each to cost $5000, were taken out yesterday by W. G. Boyd, local contractor, of 326 North Jackson street, the owner of the buildings to be Paul Perera of Los Angeles. Each of these buildings will be modern in the extreme, with all kinds of built-in features. The duplexs will be arranged in the form of a court and will be erected on two lots. They will constitute one of the most elaborate features of the kind in Glendale.

Mr. Perera has, during the past few years, been active in building operations in the western part of Los Angeles. A short time ago he became interested in Glendale. He saw at a glance the possibilities in his line here, and, realizing this fact, he went directly to work. It is understood that this duplex court is only a beginning of his building activities in Glendale and that he will continue along this line to a greater or less extent in the future.

REAL ESTATE IS RETURNING TO ACTIVITY

Earl Welch, of 518½ East Broadway, Finds Many Clients for Property

"Business is on the pickup," said Earl Welch, 518½ East Broadway, real estate agent, this morning. "There seems to be no letup in the demand for homes and lots in Glendale. Every day brings a whole flock of new property seekers, and the wideawake realty agent has all he can do to keep up with the demand.

"Thousands of tourists are flocking right now to Southern California and many of these are 'slopping over' into Glendale. The beauties and advantages of this city have been spread far and wide, and as a result a large majority of those who come to this section make it a point to see this city before they decide on their future home place.

"All of this makes it good for the real estate agent and for the merchants in Glendale in general, and results in the city retaining its reputation of being the most rapidly growing city in the United States."

Mr. Welch has a number of clients on the waiting list for loans of various denominations. He handles everything in the way of loans, insurance and real estate. Several unusually good bargains in the way of houses and lots are on his list at this time.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werper)

Annice Warden entered the parlor and looked around wistfully. The room was as reposeful as unused elegance may be. A smell of must came from the yellowed lace at the windows, the thick-piled rug and the velvet upholstering of the furniture. When a leaf dropped from the intricately wrought wax flowers that wreathed a cross under a glass globe Annice started. It was as if the whole room had stirred.

She tiptoed over and examined the waxen ornament anxiously. It was growing very delicate with age. Her mother had made it when she was young, and now that she was an old woman she cherished it almost idolastrously. "I wouldn't dare let her know another leaf had fallen," thought Annice, tiptoeing away. She some times thought that the only reason why they were never allowed to use the parlor was that her mother was afraid that the wax cross might be disastrously jarred. She wondered if Con's new wife could be made to respect it sufficiently. Without doubt she could be. Old Mrs. Warden always had her way about everybody and everything.

"What are you doing in here?" Mrs. Warden had appeared at the door. She was a short, stout woman. Her eyes were dark and sharp and her peculiarly fashioned sallow face had a look of never smiling. She stood with her hands folded on her white apron and looked at her daughter. "Isn't the sitting room good enough for you?" she demanded.

Annice flushed and tears started to her eyes. She was very sensitive and timid. Thirty years of being her mother's daughter had made of her an obedient child who would never grow up into mature self-assertiveness. She hastened to follow as her mother withdrew and closed the door softly. If she had made a sound in so doing her mother would have scolded her sounddly.

The sitting room was much like the parlor, although it contained no fragile wax crosses. The dining room was another unused, musty, chill apartment. But the kitchen was good enough for anyone, as Mrs. Warden said. There was light there and a cheerier atmosphere. Annice sat down by the window and took up some mending.

"Now, remember," said Mrs. Warden, "that when your brother sends home that woman he's married the kitchen's good enough for her, the same as it is for you and me. I won't have my house upset by her. She might just as well get used to our family ways first as last."

Annice said nothing, but she took a good many wrong stitches. Con's marriage had not been unexpected. Annice had always known that he would do it; the wonder was that he had not done it sooner. Oh, for a man's power to ask for his destiny and get it! She could not ask and so she must continue to endure. She never had seen Con's wife. Neither had her mother, but Con, who was a domineering person like his mother, would be apt to choose a meek, self-abnegative creature. Annice was sure. He and Meg had been married six months and now Meg was coming to pay her relatives-in-law a visit. Con, who had no patience with his sister and who had never got along with his mother since he was old enough to form his own ideas, was not coming. But then he never came unless he was obliged to.

"When that woman comes she'll come," said Mrs. Warren. "You needn't spend any money on hiring a cab to cart her from the station. And you need not go to meet her. I'm going to begin just as I mean to continue with her."

Still Annice did not speak. Con had said that his wife would probably arrive on the Mountain express, which reached Arden at the edge of evening. She thought of the timid girl alighting and looking for some one to meet her, some one to help her with her luggage.

"Oh, I must manage to go some way," Annice thought desperately. "I——" She looked up. Outside the door was a face smiling in at her through the glass. It was a full, dark face with a deceiving strength of outline. The woman tapped lightly.

Mrs. Warden went to open the door. She looked at the woman, looked her up and down from her plain hat to her plain shoes and the small bag she had in her hand. "Another agent," she said. "I don't want anything. I've no use for agents."

"Oh, now that's too bad," said the full contralto voice. "I've something very nice to offer you. If you'll just let me step inside a minute."

"No," said Mrs. Warden. "I've no time to bother." She began to push the door shut.

The agent laughed. "All right. But you've missed something I came to tell you," she said.

Annice looked after her as she disappeared around the corner of the house. She did wish her mother could be more civil. Even agents had a right to courteous treatment.

The peal of the front door bell made her jump. "Let me go this time, mother," she pleaded.

"No. I'll tend to my door myself," replied Mrs. Warden.

Annice, curious, followed her mother to the front door.

Mrs. Warden opened the door in the face of the agent. "You again!" she exclaimed.

The agent laughed with a snap of her dark eyes. "Yes, I thought I'd see if I'd have any better luck at this door."

"You impudent hussy!" Mrs. Warden was shutting the door on her when she deftly slipped within.

"Hold on, here, Mother Warden," she said. "I'm Meg."

"Meg:" Annice flew forward. "Meg! My sister!"

Con's wife put her arm about Annice and looked down at her kindly. "I've made Con tell me all about you, my dear," she said, "and I liked what he told. We're going to be friends, aren't we?"

"Oh, yes!" breathed Annice gratefully.

Mrs. Warden still looked unbelieving. "I don't see how you got here," she said, coldly. "The first train you could arrive on is the Mountain express."

"Oh, I never bother with trains when I can run my car," Meg said. She opened the door and showed them a battered green car standing at the gate. "Can I run it into the barn?" she asked.

"I suppose you'll have to," conceded Mrs. Warden. And this is all the welcome she gave her daughter-in-law.

"Come on out with me, Annice," said Meg. She set down her bag, slipped off her coat and hat and hung the mup on the hall rack. "I've driven 60 miles in a little more than two hours," she added. "Going some, eh?"

Mrs. Warden turned away in disgust. But it happened that the newcomer was not one that could be turned away from. She not only placed her car in the barn, but she made herself very comfortable in the house. Annice had never seen anyone like her and loved her instinctively. There was something strong and racy and self-reliant about the new sister that appealed to fine, timid, soul-lashed little Annice. But Mrs. Warden was much put out by the guest, who seemed to take her authority and her possession as a matter of course.

"I don't see how Con ever married a woman like you," she remarked before the day was over.

"He didn't. I married him. I really liked Con and I thought a little wholesome discipline would be good for him, so I undertook to see that he got it. He's much more comfortable to live with than he used to be."

"Is he?" asked Annice.

"Annice!" roared her mother.

"Much more, Annice dear." Meg was unperturbed by the roar. "When he comes you'll see. I've told him he must. It really isn't nice in him to neglect his mother and sister the way he is doing."

For 24 hours Mrs. Warden suffered her daughter-in-law to do pretty much as she pleased, and then came the touchdown. Mrs. Warden objected to Meg and Annice appearing on the streets in the green car.

"It's bad enough for you to come here in that thing without your advertising yourself by driving it around the town. As for my daughter—I wouldn't think of allowing her to be seen in it."

"And with me," Meg added. Her dark cheeks flamed. She glanced at Annice, who had begun to cry silently. She glanced at Mrs. Warden. Then with a quick movement she caught the old woman by the shoulders. Annice gasped as she saw Meg towering above her little old portly mother like a man in her young strength and vigor. Neither was the grasp on Mrs. Warden's shoulders playful.

"Look at me!" commanded Meg. "Look at me, I say. You've got an entirely wrong idea of me as well as a great many other things. I never did a low, mean thing in my life, and only one foolhardy thing—that was when I married Con. I was a nurse in an old ladies' home for seven years and I've seen lots of women just like you. But you're my mother-in-law and Con's mother and I can't have you so. It wouldn't be dignified to spank you, though you need it, but let me tell you what I will do. I'll never let Con come home and see you again unless you promise to be a little kinder to Annice. You think more of Con than you do of a dozen Annices, and I know it. And I shall use my power over him and keep him away unless you behave yourself as a normal mother should toward her daughter."

Mrs. Warden did not say a word, but her hard face blanched.

Meg looked at her a moment, and then released her. "You are 30 years old, Annice. Will you come with me for a ride—not through the town, if your mother objects, but out on the state road?".

"Yes," Annice answered.

And, leaving Mrs. Warden with her thoughts, they passed out of the house together

BARLEY HURT BY THRESHER

The large and profitable export of California barley to European brewers is endangered by injury to the grain in threshing, says Prof. J. W. Gilmore of the agronomy division, University of California College of Agriculture. More than half of the annual barley crop of California is shipped to Europe for malting purposes. During and since the war European buyers have been so much in need of barley that little attention was paid to quality; they took particularly all grades offered. Now other countries are re-entering the European market for the disposal of their barley crop. It is necessary, therefore, that California growers, threshers and shippers, give careful attention to the desirable qualities of export barley if we would retain our present valuable export trade in this product.

Members of the Mt. Everest climbing party in Thibet have ascended 26,800 feet without the use of oxygen and were only 2200 feet under the summit when they established a depot and went back to their advance base, preparatory to another dash, when oxygen will be used. Their climb to 26,800 feet was the highest in the history of the world. the former record having been 24,533 feet, made by the Duke of the Abruzzi in 1910.

SPRING NEW SCHEME FOR WIRED RADIO

NEW YORK.—A new scheme for "wired radio" is in contemplation by certain radio experts, by means of which millions of farmers now out of the regular broadcasting range will be enabled to "listen in" to market and agricultural reports with small crystal sets, which have a receiving range of 15 to 25 miles.

Te scheme takes into considera- tion the broadcasting of speech by means of the electrical power lines which cover the country with a net- work of wires. A sending station may be at one end of a wire which penetrates many miles into the 'backwoods," and any farmer who is located less than thirty miles or so from this wire, anywhere along the route, can "listen in" with ease, on a low-priced crystal outfit.

DETROIT NEWS ORCHESTRA NIGHTLY FEATURE ON WWJ

DETROIT, Mich.—The Detroit News has organized the Detroit News orchestra, which will be a regular nightly feature of the News' WWJ radio programs. In addition to these programs, the orchestra will also play elsewhere under the auspices of the News as a compli- ment to its readers.

SMALL TOWN BEST FIELD FOR RADIO

The logical field for the radio- phone is in the small country town. The department of commerce tells of a community broadcasting set which has a low wave length and which is practically free from in- terference. With a set of this type installed in the village, important news, concerts and public lectures can be broadcasted and every citi- zen in the township surrounding can get the program with his re- ceiving set. Where other means of communication are more difficult to maintain the radiophone can bridge the gap with ease.

The airphone, like motion pic- tures and interurbans, means more to the small town and the farmers than to the city dwellers. Persons residing in large centers are ordin- arily jammed with multitudinous distractions. The people in the small towns can best appreciate the utilitarian and entertaining ad- vantages of radiophony.

BLIND CHARGES TO "SEE" BY AIR WAVES

SAGINAW, Mich.—The inmates of the Michigan employment insti- tution for the blind here will soon have a new source of music, phil- osophy and knowledge of current events through the radiophone. The work of preparing and install- ing radio for the blind citizens of the state has been undertaken by Lieut. Leon Seeley. It is planned to install amplifiers in the main auditorium and in the women's and men's dormitories. In this manner all who may wish to hear the messages and the concerts will be able to do so without inconven- ience.

AIRPHONE WOMAN'S PAGE

Ridgewood, N. J.—One broadcast- ing station at least has seen fit to put on a two-hour program "for women only," giving us the first aerial woman's page.

Local station, WHN, transmits "listen in," the first complete radio newspaper of the air.

APOLIGIES FROM KFAC

It was regreted very much that this station was unable to serve its many listeners, with the pro- gram arranged for Tuesday night, June 27. The entire trouble was due to a defective power tube and on account of the great scarcity of power tubes it was impossible to obtain one. However, the same listeners were treated to the pro- gram as previously arranged, Wed- nesday, from 8 to 9 p. m., and many reported that the program was well worth waiting for. KFAC wishes to assure its many friends and listeners that such an incident will not be repeated as far as is within the power of those in charge of this station.

THEORETICAL EDITORIALS

With the permission of the many readers or radio fans, the theoretical stories will not appear on this page for the remainder of the week, as every effort is to be put forth in improving the radio broadcasting station to a point even better than an present. This means a great deal of work, which natur- ally occupies a great deal of time. Nevertheless, the stories will be continued the first of the week, if possible.

'KINEMA (KOG) MOVING

Many have wondered at the ab- sence of the Kinema radiophone (KOG) on the air and this oppor- tunity may be taken to notify the radio enthusiasts of this city that the reason is, they are moving the station into the building in which the Los Angeles Herald is situ- ated. KOG will be back on the air at an early date and better than ever.

PHUNNY STUFF! Conductor?

One young boy, inspecting the Press - Newton radio station (KFAC), inquired as to where we kept our conductor. For some time the operator didn't get the drift of the little fellow's question until the lad explained that he had un- derstood that the conductor in a radio station was the same as the conductor on the street cars, and he had expected to see a man in a blue suit pulling a cord of some sort.

Radio may remind one of a base- ball game, as the pitcher is said to be "up in the air."—Radio Journal.

Clarence Glickstein of Perth Am- boy, writes in to say that he is using a wrecked flivver as an aerial and getting good results. The flivver landed in a tree-top by accident and Mr. Glickstein was quick to act and string wires with good effect. He reports that his radio-Ford now has a range of 180 miles, without gasoline. It catches every vibration beteween Pitts- burg and Newark, even including rough roads and detours. In Brook- lyn, 218 home-brewers have con- verted their stills into radio out- fits. BELIEVE IT OR NOT

Radio Editor: Here is a little yarn for your page, which was told to me by an old timer in the ra- dio line and for which he earnest- ly vouched.

"Several years ago there was an 'arc' station located on the west side of Los Angeles, which was during the war, moved to another place for a reason not generally known to the public.

"Interference was the real rea- son and this came in an odd way. No ordinary interference was this, which almost crippled this big sta- tion, yet its source of origin was from a commonplace source, frogs.

"I know you think I'm batty, but frogs nearly put this outfit on the hummer for fair.

"You know enough about arc stations to know that an ordinary five hundred volt arc, burning in a chamber filled with gas, they used city gas piped right in, sets up a disturbance which led out onto the antennae is easily controlled by cutting in and out a portion of the tuning helix by means of a relay, resulting in a powerful radio tele- graph communication.

"This outfit had to have water circulating around inside of the electrodes of the arc to keep them cool, the water being allowed to escape outside the building to form a pool in which the engineers es- tablished the ground connection.

"Frogs found this water a nice place to live in and a colony set- tled themselves to live there and sing. 'Those were the happy days.'

"The electrified water coming from the transmitter and being further electrified by the radia- tions from the ground connection, did strange things to those frogs. They grew, large, loud and lusty!

"As these frogs grew, other frogs noting the extra loud con- certs, put out by these frogs, de- cided to join the happy crowd, probably thinking that there must be lots to eat and not quite un- derstanding all that the 'Booster' chorus was singing anyway.

"Anyhow, the operators sudden- ly realized that on account of the frog interference it was quite im- possible to detect the signals com- ing into their station. One wise cub got himself a piece of two-by- four and every time the music got too loud, he would whale away with his club on the side of the house which would quiet the opera for a while, at least until some old daddy frog would start the show all over again.

"The company auditor got busy investigating why so much timber was needed around a radio station, the boys had worn out several clubs and were doing turns, beat- ing on the shack to quiet the frogs, and the efficiency expert decided that too much time was lost by the operators pounding the shack instead of their keys, so he recom- mended that the whole affair be moved somwhere where there were no frogs."

Believe this or not, it's a true lie.

Yours,
HYSTERISIS INDUCTANCE
Hysteresis Inductance Kilowatt.

FRISK HAS TO TA KE HIS MEDICINE

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Frisk Squirrel was puzzled. He couldn't think why Tad Coon was snickering. He never knew he'd almost played a funny joke on Malty Kitten. He never dreamed that nice fuzzy cocoon tasted as bad to Malty as his mother's pills would have tasted to him—or that Malty had taken it rather than go on pretending to be cross with him. And he couldn't understand why Malty Kitten complained. "And I lapped up the last drop of milk there was left in Tommy Peele's barn, too."

"Come along with us," advised Tad Coon. "There's plenty of milk in Tommy's corn. That's what we're going after now."

"I don't care if I do," agreed the cat. "I spose the Green Squirmers are on the corn. Thanks be to Mother Nature, they have no fuzz on. I couldn't even bear the feel of mouse fur in my mouth, just now."

"Those big moths are out, too," suggested Tad wickedly.

"Ach!" Malty combed his tongue on his front teeth. "They're as fuzzy as—as—" He didn't dare say cocoons.

As they were swishing through the thick grass by the cornfield fence, the little squirrel gave a jump as if a pinch-bug had grabbed him. He had run his nose into a smell he knew. Fool's Parsley again! Would he never get away from the pesky thing! He hoped neither Malty nor Tad knew it grew for fools—'cause they had said he was one. He didn't mean to tell them. But that's just what he did do.

Yum! That sweet-corn! Berries never tasted any better to Diver Beaver than corn to Frisk. Once or twice he wondered if he oughtn't be eating something else in between. But it wasn't like the Deep Woods, where seeds grew right at paw. There was nothing here but corn, or the fat white grubs he found in the ears, and a moth or two. But they were sweeter and richer than the corn.

He began to feel tight and queer. He couldn't take a long breath. What was that awful feeling? "Ow, ow!" he began to moan. "Uncle Tad, hath corn got pwickerth on?"

"Of course not," said Tad. "What makes you ask?"

"Becauth dew-berries hath. Diver Beaver thaid they pwicked him inthide, after they wath all thwallowed down. Thith corn pwickth, too. It hath got clawth. I feelth 'em."

"Poor baby!" exclaimed Malty. He knew what Frisk's pricking was. He'd had a tummy-ache, himself, when he was a sick baby kitten. "Go get Doctor Muskrat, Tad. Run! Run!"

"Ow, ow!" he began to moan. "Uncle Tad, hath corn got pwickerth on?"

But Frisk was ahead of him. Sobbing, he stumbled to the fence, where the Fool's Parsley was growing. He picked an awful smelling seed, and strangled it down.

CONVICTS GIVEN CHANCE

BATTLE CREEK, Mich.—Forty-eight "honor men" from the Michigan state penitentiary, are engaged in building an addition to the American legion hospital at Custer. When the work is completed they will be granted freedom on parole. The plan is an experiment and if successful will be continued. Each worker receives a daily wage, the money being sent to the prison officials. Men making good will receive this money when they have fulfilled their part of the honor contract.

HIGHER PRICES RACE RUSSIA'S MONEY MILL

Has Hard Time Printing Enough Money to Meet Depreciation

MOSCOW (by mail).—Prices of food and clothing increased 750 per cent in Moscow during the first ten weeks of 1922, according to official statistics just published. They are still going up, faster than ever, largely due to the fall in value of the paper rouble.

Rapidly as the government money printing presses are working, they are running a losing race with the high cost of living. The government has not been able to publish roubles fast enough to make up for their decrease in purchasing value.

Figures for December, 1921, show that while the quantity of paper money in circulation was increased 85 per cent during that one month, prices went up 100 per cent on the Moscow market.

Price tags in the store windows on Arbat and Kuznetski Most not infrequently grow to twice their size in the course of a single week. Housewives, trying to estimate their household budgets more than a few days in advance, are at their wits ends. Merchants, especially provincial buyers obliged to lay in stock for a month ahead, are confronted with a problem that in more than a few cases has meant bankruptcy.

The rapid drop of the paper rouble has created a commercial and economic situation without precedent in world economic history.

Sensational as were the chutes of the Austrian crown and the German mark on foreign bourses, they never dropped in actual purchasing value inside the countries themselves with anything even approaching the rate of the Russian rouble during the last four months.

Wildcat Speculation

Without any stable medium of exchange the Moscow market has been converted into a wildcat field of speculation, in which the spoils go to the lucky and the quick.

In paying their employes, of course, both the government and private firms have been obliged to shift to a theoretical gold basis. Salaries are reckoned in so many gold roubles per month, the actual amount of paper roubles varying according to the average rate during the month, or week, as the period may be.

From the employes' point of view, this has partly compensated for the skyrocketing of prices, as salaries increased with every drop of the paper rouble, millions of which have been poured into circulation weekly through the various governmental departments.

But rapidly as salaries were "hiked," the price tags always managed to keep a little ahead, forcing the ultimate consumer to make up the difference as best he could—by selling personal belongings or speculating.

The disturbing effect of the constantly shifting prices upon business in general, however, could not be eliminated by any hypothetical figuring in gold roubles. Bookkeeping has become a literal nightmare.

Long-time contracts, of course, have been rendered out of the question. All business has been reduced to a series of quick "grab it on the wing" deals. Business men in Moscow are holding all their capital either in nonperishable products or foreign currency—principally American dollars and English pounds. Even the German mark is used by perhaps one-third, according to recent estimates, it being terra firma itself, compared with the Soviet rouble.

During the period, January 1 to March 15, flour increased 900 per cent; bread, 800; meat, 700; butter, 600; potatoes, 700; sugar, 400; shoes, 1000; soap, 900; tobacco, 400.

Milk, however, and kerosine went up only 200 per cent.

Matches are also at the bottom of the list, having increased only 200 per cent.

Five months ago one could ride three or four hours in a drotshky for 100,000 roubles. Now it costs 500,000 just to climb in and very, very few rides are short enough to be made for less than a million.

Last fall the best seat in the opera could be had for 35,000 roubles. Today an average "parterre" (rear half of the ground floor) brings a million, and the best places sell for two million.

CARMEN TO BE MAGNIFICENT SPECTACLE

600 in Cast, 250 in Chorus; 65,000 to Attend Hollywood Performance

Imagine, if you can, a cast of 600 persons, a chorus of 250 and 65,000 persons comprising the audience!

Not even in the days of spectacular Greek drama were so many persons congregated at one theatrical performance.

EDWARD JOHNSON, Tenor of Hollywood Production.

But this is what the Hollywood chamber of commerce expects to hang up as a world record when the most famous work of Prosper Merimee, "Carmen," is sung the evening of July 8 in the Hollywood Bowl.

The arrival in Los Angeles of Marguerita Sylva, Edward Johnson, Carl Gantvoort, Henri Scott and Edna Leopold, the famous opera singer, who are to sing the principal roles, is to take on the aspect of a public event. Silk-hatted committeemen, city officials, prominent persons in the musical world of California and directors of the Hollywood chamber of commerce will gather at the station to greet and welcome these famed songbirds. Then a public reception will be held for a few minutes prior to the parade.

After the downtown ceremonies the songbirds will be taken directly to the enormous Hollywood Bowl. Here they will see for the first time a theater builded by the master artisan, Nature. Here, too, they will see a huge force of carpenters and other laborers hard at work building boxes, loges, seats and benches whereby the capacity of the amphitheater will be increased from 5500 to 35,000.

MARGUERITA SILVA, Star of Carmen.

In addition to this unparalleled seating capacity arrangements are being made by Walter E. Shostedt to provide standing room on the surrounding hills for 65,000 additional persons.

It is impossible to find a counterpart for this colossal production of Carmen, for no other performance of record has had so many superlative features. Marguerita Sylva is to sing the principal role, the fiery cigaret girl who loves deeply but not wisely.

In support of Miss Sylva will be heard such widely known singers as Edward Johnson, leading tenor of the Chicago Opera company; Carl Gantvoort, celebrated basso of Boston Opera company; Henri Scott, principal baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, and Edna Leopold, lyric soprano of concert fame.

In addition to this Ernest Belcher, the noted ballet master, is daily rehearsing a chorus of 100 trained dancers.

Music will be provided by the Philharmonic orchestra, 75 artists, each one a soloist. Vav. Fulgenzio Guerrieri will conduct the orchestra.

For weeks past Alex Bevani has been working as general director to see that every feature is perfect.

Prices for tickets have been fixed so that no one need miss the wonderful performance because of price. While prices range from $5 to $1, war tax extra, there are 10,000 tickets at $1 each.

Tickets are now on sale at the Birkel Music company, 446 South Broadway, and 6756 Hollywood boulevard.

THE FINAL TEST

When God created the earth and man, the very first think that He did for man's spiritual good was to make a rest day for him (Mark 2:27), and God blessed the "Seventh Day" and hallowed it, made it holy, Gen. 2:3.

As the Seventh Day is the only part of God's work that He made holy, at creation, and it was made for man, and He tells man to "remember to keep it holy" (Ex. 20:8). It is surely the foundation stone, that He laid in Zion (Isa. 28:16), upon which the whole plan of our salvation rests. And if we do not keep it as Jesus did, we can justly claim no credit for keeping any of God's laws. See Ex. 16:4-30, Heb. 3:7 to 4:13, Jas. 2:10.

And, as the "War of Armageddon (that the most of us are expecting soon), is to be the last great event to take place before Jesus comes, and it is to be over "God's Day" (Rev. 16:14:16). Then all who do not keep it will be on the wrong side—rebels—and will be lost.

And, as the Garden of Eden, where God put man (Adam), where he got all his physical sustenance (Gen. 2:8-16), is surely a type of the Decalogue (God's law or will to man), where we get all our spiritual living, by doing God's will, as Jesus did. Heb. 10:7, John 4:34, and the "Tree of Knowledge of good and evil (God's tree), in the midst of the garden, is a type of the fourth precept (God's Day) in the bosom of His royal law. So by ignoring what God said about His holy Seventh Day is just as bad for us as what Adam did with "God's Tree" in the Garden was for him—it is spiritual death. Ezek. 18:4:29-1, John 3:4.

In Num. 15:29-36 we see that one law is for all, both Jew and Gentile, and the fate of the man who gathered sticks on the Sabbath (Vs. 32:36) is a warning to us, that all who do not keep God's Holy Seventh Day as Jesus did before He comes again, will meet a worse fate, for ours will be both a spiritual and physical death. For this is the "final test" that is to come upon all the earth, Rev. 3:9:10. For it is the word of God's patience, a word to the wise is sufficient, Dan. 12:10.

All in love for the truth.

LAST DAY OF REX BEACH FILM HERE

The element of mystery in the new Rex Beach picture "Fair Lady," was put to a severe and novel test before it was finally turned over to United Artists corporation for release, and the wide difference of opinion of experts on the solution of the mystery was taken as positive proof that the public will not be able positively to anticipate the ending of this screen drama until the very last scenes. "Fair Lady" will be seen at the T. D. and L. theatre for the last times today.

JAPAN HAS FIRST TRAIN ROBBERY

"Stick 'Em Up!" Comes Sharp Command In English

TOKYO (By Main).—Japan is getting all the fancy trimmings of Western civilization.

For instance, the first train robbery ever known in this land took place the other day. The whole country went wild over it. Never a train robber before—and here was a real one, staged in approved American movie fashion.

The papers were filled with indignant outbursts from irate citizens and with scathing editorials denouncing the "crime wave" and those who failed to prevent it.

But underneath it all there was something of a whimsical affectation of pride in the affair. As one of the humorous weeklies of Tokyo said: "We are in nowise behind occidental nations in modern appurtenances of travel. Japan can have just as good train robberies as anybody!"

"Wild West stuff in American moving pictures inspired the bandit, the police officials here think. That, however, is conceded to be speculative since the bandit hasn't been caught or interviewed.

"Stick 'em up!" was the command, in English, of the masked bandit. Then he repeated his order in Japanese—flourishing casually a big pistol the while.

The passengers, while inexperienced in their roles, had also doubtless been to the movies and knew how to conduct themselves properly under such circumstances. They stuck 'em up" in the rothodox fashion and were relieved of their loose change.

Then the bandit did something thot proved his nationality no matter where he may have received his training. "I am humbly grateful to you honorable ladies and gentlemen!" he said and bowed his thanks. The politeness of no nation save Japan could have inspired that.

BUFFOONERY BUT NOT BASSOONERY

LONDON, June 29.—Tenants in a large apartment house in the neighborhood of Piccadilly objected to the playing of a bassoon by Erminio Bompa, an Italian. Bompa, who had a host of witnesses, played them into court on the offending instrument. The judge remonstrated. "Enough of this buffoonery," he ordered. Said Bompa: "Me no makea da buffoonery—makea da bassoonery." The tenants won.

HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN FLAG

Written Exclusively for the Glendale Daily Press

By ELLA B. POWELL

On June 13, 1794, congress passed an act providing that the flag should have 15 stripes and 15 stars, as the states of Vermont and Kentucky had been added to the Union. It is interesting to note that there were great objections to this, for fear that is this practice were followed the country might be compelled to have a flag with 20 stars within the next few years.

This banner of 15 stars and 15 stripes floated over the nation for 23 years, during which time momentous things happened. The Louisiana Purchase was consummated in 1803; five states were admitted to the Union; Lewis and Clark made their memorable expedition overland and in 1905 unfurled the Stars and Stripes in Oregon. There was war with the Barbary powers; a naval war with France, in which the United States was successful; the war of 1812, the northwest Indian war, and the Creek Indian war.

It was during this period, September 14, 1814, that Francis Scott Key wrote the "Star, Spangled Banner." Henry Watterson very graphically describes the circumstances under which it was composed.

"It was during the darkest period An English army had invaded and occupied the seat of the national government and had burned the capital of the nation. An English squadron was in undisputed possession of Chesapeake bay. There being nothing of interest or value left in the vicinity of Washington to detain them, the British were massing their land and naval forces for other conquests, and, as their ships sailed down the Potomac, Dr. William Beanes, a prominent citizen of Maryland, who had been arrested in his home in upper Marlboro, charged with some offense, real of fancied, was carried off a prisoner.

It was to secure the liberation of this gentleman, his neighbor and friend, that Francis Scott Key obtained leave of the President to go to the British admiral under a flag of truce. He was conveyed by the cartel boat used for the purpose of exchanging prisoners, and accompanied by the flag officer of the government. They proceeded down the bay from Baltimore, and found the British fleet at the mouth of the Potomac.

Mr. Key was courteously received by Admiral Cochrane, but he was not encouraged as to the success of his mission until letters from the English officers wounded at Bladensburg and left in the care of the Americans, were delivered to the friends in the fleet to whom they had written.

"These bore such testimony to the kindness with which they had been treated, that it was finally agreed that Dr. Beanes should be released: but, as an advance upon Baltimore was about to be made. it was required that the party of Americans should remain under guard on board their own vessel until these operations were concluded.

"Thus it was that, on the night of the 14th of September, 1814, Key witnessed the bombardment of Fort McHenry, which his song was to render forever illustrious.

"He did not quit the deck the long night through. With his single companion, the flag officer, he watched every shell from the moment it was fired until it fell, 'listening with breathless interest to hear if an explosion followed.'"

REFUSES SALE OF LAND TO KAISER

BERLIN, (By Mail).—Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm has been seeking to extend his domain in Doorn, Holland. Despite the fact that he owns a large villa with a considerable amount of land attached, he has felt that he needed more space than the estate of Haus Doorn affords him.

But a neighbor from whom he wished to buy repulsed his overtures haughtily. This woman belongs to the family from which the late Anthony Comstock, New York reformer, came.

Her reply to the kaiser's offer to buy was simply:

"Why should I sell to you. My family is older than the Hohenzollern."

That ended the negotiations in that direction, though it is understood that the former ruler is still seeking other property in the Doorn neighborhood.

The woman's refusal to have any dealings with the ex-kaiser is understood to rest upon other than strictly grounds of family pride, for, it is said, she was compelled to sue the kaiser for damage to her property when he first moved to Doorn. At that time his moving vans cut up some of the adjoining land belonging to this woman.

The kaiser is said to have been extremely angry at the law action and to have been even more moved by the woman's curt refusal of his subsequent offer for her property.

A PROVERB OUT OF SEASON

My optimistic friend and fine,
Who has the cheer-up things to say
I hear you say the sun will shine
Tomorrow brighter than today.
And that's all right in winter when
The sun shines only now and then.

But when in the thermometer
The mercury's a hundred strong,
And when no cooling breezes stir,
And the sun's arc is red and long,
Oh, can't you someway find for me
Some other cheering simile?

When I have soaked this shirt of mine,
My collar wilted quite away,
And you tell me the sun will shine
Tomorrow brighter than today,
However mournful I may be,
Somehow you do not comfort me.

Oh optimistic friend, pray go
And find me at whatever cost,
Some cheer-up proverb about snow
Or ice or icicle or frost.
Do that and I will sound your praise,
I'm quite fed up on sunny days!

TUJUNGA VALLEY BALL CLUB IS ORGANIZING

C. E. Kimpel Is to Manage Newly Formed Team Here

TUJUNGA, June 29.—The Tujunga Valley ballclub is being organized by C. E. Kimpel, as a member of the California boosters' league. Glendale, Hermosa beach, Pasadena, Simons, Talbert-Whitmore, Herald Greens, Armstrong Auto and Tujunga Valley teams are members of the league.

The first game will be held at Sunland next Sunday afternoon, between Tujunga Valley and Armstrong Auto. Lumber for 60-foot bleachers at the local diamond has been donated by the Johnson-Anawalt lumber company, the Tujunga lumber and supply company, and the Independent lumber company.

Mr. Kimpel managed a ballclub here last season, and has had experience with local teams. He expects to make the newly organized club a permanent one. Finances are being handled by popular subscription, and ball fans are being urged to help outfit the team.

Unique Nuptials at Hillhaven

Yesterday morning at 10:30 the marriage of Arthur J. Scribner and Miss Jean Boyle took place in the amphitheatre at Hillhaven. Rev. J. U. Staats performed the ceremony, and Bruce Anawalt acted as best man. A large number of guests were present.

This is the first wedding to take place at Hillhaven, which provided a charming setting for the ceremony. Bride and groom entered from opposite sides over a rustic bridge and met at the altar.

Mr. and Mrs. Scribner have left for a short trip and on their return will be at home to their friends in their Golindrina park home.

AVIATORS LEARN TO DIRECT FIRE

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Naval aviation students at the Pensacola air station are now given a "post-graduate course," which gives them actual practice in "spotting," an innovation just put into effect, making it possible for them to be trained under conditions similar to fleet service.

One of the most important functions of a naval aviator is to act as the eyes of the fleet gunners observing and controlling the fire. Flying high up over the scene of action he is in an ideal position to view the splash of the battleship's salvos and to signal down what corrections must be made so as to bring the shells into the enemy fleet.

In order to teach the young flyers these tactics before he goes with the fleet for active service, a battery of 3-inch guns has been installed at the Pensacola station so as to reproduce on a reduced scale the conditions found in actual warfare.

The student aviators are sent aloft in the standard naval spotting plane over targets representing enemy ships. At the first salvo they observe the fall of the shells, figures out the change needed and instantly, by means of his radio telephone transmits his correction to the gunners below.

This correction is made, another salvo fired and usually the target is riddled for spotting from the air, with the sea spread out below like a map, is far more accurate than spotting from the fighting top of a battleship with the target barely visible on the horizon.

FOUR HORSEMEN IS EPIC OF SURGING PASSIONS

Great Film at the Glendale Theater Draws Big Audience

An epic tale of surging passion sweeping from the wide plains of the Argentine through the fascinating frivolities of pre-war Paris into the blazing turmoil of the German invasion of Northern France was unfolded last night at the Glendale theatre. It was the first showing of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the $1,000,000 Rex Ingram production made for Metro, which has been the screen sensation of New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburg, Detroit and Los Angeles. The picture, adapted by June Mathis from the great novel of Vicente Blasco Ibanez, has intensified the dramatic force of the original story and last night it held the spectators breathlessly intent as with swift, sure strokes it hammered home the terror and grandeur of the war—and a great deal of the humor and light-hearted gaiety that kept bubbling up through the turbid stream of struggling humanity when the world was in arms.

The director, Rex Ingram, has succeeded in concentrating the great struggle in a series of unforgetable pictures that flash out the quintessence of life at white heat. He makes us see above the struggle the awesome figures of the four horsemen, Conquest, War, Famine and Death, prophesied by St. John in the Book of the Apocalypse, charging into our very hearts. And through it all is the deeply human, deeply moving spectacle of intensely real people in their baffled attempts to readjust themselves to the demands of war days. In this picture the war is realized on a gigantic scale, with a greatness of imagination that dwarfs all other ambitious attempts that the screen has seen. "The Four Horsemen" is the fulfillment of the promise of a noble art in pictures.

Rex Ingram was assisted in making the picture by Walter Mayo, the photographer was John Seitz and the technical directors were Amos Myers and Joseph Calder. In the cast that included 50 principals and 2500 extras, the performances that stood out with most marked brilliancy were those of Rudolph Valentino, Alice Terry, Pomeroy Cannon, Joseph Swickard, Brinsley Shaw, Alan Hale, Bridgetta Clark, Mabel Van Buren, John Sainpolis, Nigel de Brulier, Virginia Warwick, Derek Ghent, Stuart Holmes and Edward Connelly.

THE PEARSONS ARE HOME FROM CONGO

Missionaries Bring With Them Children Born in Far Off Mission

Mrs. Evelyn Utter Pearson, her husband, Dr. Ernest E. Pearson, ad their two babies, arrived this week in Pomona, for a visit with Mrs. Pearson's parents, Rev. J. W. Utter and wife, after spending some weeks with Dr. Pearson's relatives in Eureka, Illinois. They are home from Lotumbe, Africa, on the mighty Congo river, for a year's furlough. They are missionaries for the Christian church in that region. The children were born in Africa and have stood the 14,000-mile journey from the heart of Africa to Sunny California very well. Lotumbe is but a day's journey from an insurgent tribe of cannibals in Belgian Congo, who, according to Dr. Pearson, show their contempt for Belgium and her soldiers by eating the latter whenever they capture them.

The children, Basanga and Roseki, whose American names are Mary and Paul, are sturdy specimens and Mary, who is 3 years old, speaks both "United States" and the Bantu dialect, but neither very fluently as yet.

The children are viewing with little interest the things that they see on their trip. Automobiles and trains are new means of torture for them, as a horse was the only means of conveyance known to them in the Congo. Their African names were given them by the natives, who, according to their custom of calling parents by the names of their first child, dubbed Dr. and Mrs. Pearson Is'Anga and Nyang' Isanga (father of Mary and mother of Mary).

Mrs. Pearson said that the natives call all women missionaries "mama" as a mark of respect, but that some of the single women at first object to the honor. Pajamas are the latest style of street wear at Lotumbe, she said.

A woman who left her husband in the Congo recently was punished, according to Dr. Pearson, by being tied in the path of driver ants, which stung her terribly.

Dr. Pearson is a graduate of the University of Illinois college of medicine. Mrs. Pearson, who was Miss Evelyn Utter of Covina, Cal., is descended from the Bullock and Viley families of Kentucky, and studied at Transylvania college, Lexington, Ky., and at Butler college and the college of missions, both of Indianapolis, Ind.

Dr. and Mrs. Pearson will visit in Glendale, soon. Mrs. Pearson was a resident of our city for five years, her father, Rev. J. W. Utter, having organized Central Christian church and he was its first pastor, serving from 1908 to 1913.
